Pompeo criticizes leaks of fired IG's probes

By Bryan Lowry and Michael Wilner
McClatchy Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State Mike Pompeo decried leaks to the media about internal investigations into his office on Wednesday, calling allegations that the department's inspector general was fired in retaliation for his inquiries "patently false."

Pompeo, holding his first news conference since President Donald Trump terminated the department's ethics watchdog, Steve Linick, said the president did so at his recommendation, adding that he "frankly should have done it some time ago." But the nation's top diplomat bristled at more specific questions regarding the reason for Linick's firing.

Linick had been conducting two investigations that were potentially damaging to Pompeo. One centered on the Trump administration's decision to expedite arms sales to Saudi Arabia, according to New York Rep. Eliot Engel, the Democratic chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The other involved questions over whether one of Pompeo's aides, a staffer who had worked for him during his time as a Kansas congressman, had conducted personal business on State Department time.

Pompeo conflated the two investigations as he bitterly rejected the idea that the inspector general's firing was in retaliation for the investigations, which were ongoing at the time of Linick's ouster.

Trump threatens to freeze aid for Michigan, Nevada

By Todd Spangler
Detroit Free Press

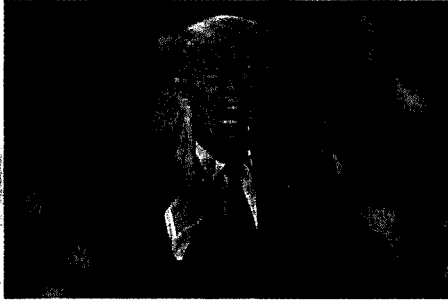

WASHINGTON - President Donald Trump on Wednesday threatened funding for Michigan amid a global health pandemic if state officials move ahead with plans to send absentee ballot applications to every state voter.

Michigan Secretary of State Jocelyn Benson on Tuesday morning said, in a story first reported in the Detroit Free Press, she and local clerks will send absentee ballot applications to all of the state's 7.7 million voters so they can, if they choose to do so, take part in the Aug. 4 and Nov. 3 elections without going to polling places.

Doing so, she said, would allow voters to avoid the potential threat posed by the spread of COVID-19.

But Trump, who has railed against widespread voting by mail, posted on Twitter about 7:50 a.m. a suggestion that if she did so, he would move to block funding for Michigan.

In his first post, it was unclear the president understood what he was talking about, as he suggested Michigan was in the process of sending absentee ballots themselves - not the applications for people to ask for absentee ballots if they wish - to voters.

He wrote it's illegal for anyone to send unsolicited absentee ballots to voters and said if it occurs, he will "ask to hold up funding to Michigan if they want to go down this Voter Fraud path!"

He also referred to Benson as a "rogue Secretary of State," without mentioning her by name.

Trump made a similar threat on Twitter Wednesday morning about efforts in Nevada to ensure voters get absentee ballots.

Hours later, on Wednesday afternoon, Trump edited and re-posted the comment, adding the phrase "absentee ballot applications." Calling that illegal, however, is on far shakier ground than sending out absentee ballots themselves.

While it is illegal in Michigan to send absentee ballots to voters who do not formally request them, it is far from clear that there are the same legal hurdles to sending applications for the absentee ballots to registered voters, though it could be challenged in court. Benson and some local clerks sent out applications to voters before the May 5 local elections in response to the pandemic.

Supreme Court blocks release of Mueller grand jury materials to House

WASHINGTON (Los Angeles Time) - The Supreme Court on Wednesday granted an emergency appeal from President Donald Trump's lawyers and blocked House Democrats from examining grand jury materials from special counsel Robert Mueller's investigation of Russian meddling in the 2016 election.

The justices said they would consider a full appeal petition from the Justice Department, which will likely delay a decision about whether to hear the case until at least the end of June.

The court's action means more delay for the House Judiciary Committee, which first sought to see the evidence and documents after Mueller wrapped up his probe last year and before they began an impeachment.

Trump's lawyers argued the grand jury materials must be kept secret, and they refused to turn over the files.

The House Democrats won before a federal judge in October and before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in March.
